

Large selection of ornate rugs and sterling silver, including Gorham, Asprey, and others.

Tiffany Studios large hanging lamp (Dogwood Pattern) with original hardware

American furniture including William & Mary, Queen Anne and Chippendale

Luxury Decorative Arts including Asprey, Lalique, and this Tiffany & Co. Champleve Enamel Clock

Folk art including an important and large fish monger's trade sign and a smaller dimensional fish trade sign

American school paintings including Hudson River Valley and White Mountains

Decorative Arts including Continental and American furniture, early American lighting, stoneware, First Nation items (including McKenney & Hall portraits, baskets, pottery, and textiles), art glass, Chinese porcelain, and more

Fine jewelry and luxury accessories by Tiffany & Co., Cartier, Chanel, Gucci, and Louis Vuitton

They say you can't go home again. Turns out, you can.

In the 1950s, Garth Oberlander bought "a big red barn and brick house" at 2690 Stratford Road in Delaware, Ohio and began to cultivate a community of buyers and sellers that would grow to include some of the biggest, most legendary names in the art and antique business nationwide. From Peter Tillou to Bill Samaha - and his parents before him; from the Sacks of New York to midwestern icons like Clark Garrett and the Momchilovs, these people called Garth's Barn (now known as The Barn at Stratford) home - and they looked forward as much to the warm atmosphere, lemon meringue pie, and Carolyn's irises out front as they did the scholarly exchanges inside and the breathless anticipation as the saleroom buzzed with excitement for that next great piece that would soar past estimates to land on the pages of Maine Antique Digest, Antiques & the Arts Weekly (aka The Bee), and Ohio Antique Review. For countless others in the antique community, The Barn has served as a home base, incubator, and regular stomping grounds.

Now, the emblematic property is poised to once again cultivate today's community of art and antique enthusiasts as we return to the familiar, comfortable saleroom to strengthen relationships, exchange knowledge, and fuel the passionate pursuit of shared history and material culture.

Join me as we return to auctions at the barn.

NOW ACCEPTING CONSIGNMENTS FOR NOVEMBER 2022.

For more information, visit auctionsatthebarn.com or call 740.815.7016.

Cultivate
Collectors' Services

amelia jeffers, auctioneer & appraiser

Fine & Decorative Arts Auction

September 15, 2022

Catalog and bidding online, with in-person preview and bidding available.

A diverse grouping of wonderful objects including items by Tiffany Studios; artwork by Eric Sloane, Ernest Fiene, George Bellows, American school artists, and others; folk art including trade signs, samplers, fraktur, cut-work valentines; furniture including Continental & American (William & Mary, Queen Anne, Chippendale, Hepplewhite); First Nation objects including McKenney and Hall, pottery, baskets, textiles; antique firearms; historical americana; stoneware; early lighting; art glass; sterling silver; coins; fine jewelry and accessories from Tiffany & Co., Cartier, Gucci, Chanel, and Louis Vuitton.

No sales tax. 20% buyer's premium
(25% online)

Amelia Jeffers, Auctioneer

Ameliajeffers.com

bid@ameliajeffers.com

740.815.7016

